Under New Jersey state card check legislation similar to the proposed Employee Free Choice Act approximately 1,900 workers considered “administrative” at Rutgers University voted to unionize June 7, 2007 and affiliate with the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO.

Union of Rutgers Administrators-American Federation of Teachers (URA-AFT), Local 1766, members work in many valuable functions at Rutgers University’s three campuses and in field offices in every county through the state.

URA-AFT members work in academic offices helping advise, mentor and direct students. Others conduct research to improve community services, social programs or agriculture. The union represents members in the University’s external relations, communications and athletics departments as well as budget and financial service workers.

From conducting nutrition and agricultural lessons for children and parents to administering economic development programs, the union’s members are making a significant contribution to the greater society.

The Rutgers Council of AAUP Chapters was designated by a majority of faculty in 1970 as the exclusive labor representative in accordance with the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act (1968). The graduate student employees were added to the full-time faculty bargaining unit in 1972. The full-time faculty unit is the negotiating representative for 2,500 faculty members and 1,700 teaching and graduate assistants. The chapters include the campuses in Camden, Newark, and New Brunswick/Piscataway.

The Part-Time Lecturer Faculty Chapter and Educational Opportunity Fund (EOF) Counselors are also affiliates of the Rutgers Council. As legally recognized bargaining units in their own right, they negotiate their own Agreements with the University.

The Rutgers Council is affiliated with the American Association of University Professors and the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO.
